

QUESTIONS TO ASK YOUR ANESTHESIOLOGIST

DISCUSS ANY CONCERNS

It is important that you talk to your anesthesiologist about any concerns you may have.

For example, some people throw up in the recovery room due to anesthesia. If the anesthesiologist knows this in advance, they can give you medications to prevent this from occurring.

QUESTIONS TO ASK YOUR ANESTHESIOLOGIST:

- What type of anesthesia will I get? Will it be local or general?
- Am I at risk for complications from anesthesia?
- What can I expect when I wake up?
- What are my options for pain control, and what should I do to prepare for the procedure?

Anesthesia is safer than ever before, but speaking with your anesthesiologist is just as important as speaking with your surgeon before your procedure.

QUESTIONS AND NOTES

DATE:

PROCEDURE:

PROVIDER NAME:

Question	Notes
What type of anesthesia will I get? Will it be local or general?
Am I at risk for complications from anesthesia?
What can I expect when I wake up?
What are my options for pain control, and what should I do to prepare for the procedure?

Additional Questions/Notes:

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---

---